OUR ALMANACK.

THE Astronomical Calendar which appears on the first page of this wrapper is specially prepared for "THE LEISURE HOUR" by Mr. Dunkin, of the Royal Observatory. Its object is to give, in as concise a form as possible, by the help of abbreviations, the phenomena relating to the sun, moon, and planets during the month. Among these will be found the times of the principal phases of the moon; when she is at her greatest or least distances from the earth; solar and lunar eclipses; eclipses of the satellites in the shadow of Jupiter, etc. Also the dates of conjunction, or near approach, of the planets, and occasionally the hour when they pass the meridian of Greenwich. We shall likewise include the dates of discovery of the minor planets, which will probably familiarise, in some degree, the names of these minute bodies, whose existence is still so imperfectly known among general readers. The dates of the principal festivals in the ecclesiastical calendar will be given, at least those of universal interest. Of miscellaneous information, our limited space will probably prevent the insertion of more than general holidays, and the births, etc., of the Royal Family. We hope, however, that our readers will occasionally find some useful facts in our Almanack which will repay a monthly examination.

* * "The Reading Girl" forms part of the new design on our wrapper, by permission of the London Stereoscopic Company.
